AMUSEMENTS.

The Park is now being filled to its utmost capacity at every performance of the popular border drama, "Nobody's Claim," and the old play is so well presented by the Holden Brothers' company that it stirs the audience to wild enthusiasm each afternoon and evening. Business has been surprisingly heavy at the Park since the opening of the season. The warm weather of last week had no effect whatever upon the attendance, while the present week has seen a succession of overflowing audiences. Advance Agent Dugan, representing the melodrama, "A Human Slave," which comes to the Park the first of next week, wanted to see the first performance of "Nobody's Claim" Thursday afternoon, confessing that he had always had a fondness for the old blood-and-thunder drama. He didn't arrive at the theater until the last act had started. The house was packed and there were over a hundred "standees" behind the last row of seats. As Dugan is one of the smallest agents on the road he couldn't see over the shoulders of the "railbirds," as he called the standing spectators. and he didn't even succeed in getting a single glimpse of the stage. "Well, I guess an advance agent needn't worry any when his show is booked for this house," he said, as he gave up all attempt to see what was go-

Eugene Presbrey has almost finished his dramatization of Horung's novel, "The Amateur Cracksman," in which Kyrle Belof the new play are to begin in New York within the next fortnight. Mr. Bellew will be making a complete change in the character of his stage work when he appears as Raffles, the gentleman burglar. From such characters as the swashbuckling hero of "A Gentleman of France" and the romantic Romeo to the calm and thoroughly modern central figure of "The Amateur Cracksman" is about as big a jump as an actor could possibly make. It is understood that Mr. Presbrey has not confined himself to Hornung's novel for his characters in the stage version of the story. He has bodily transferred one role of importance from the old drama of "Jim, the Penman." and set it down among his own scenes and incidents. This character is Captain Redwood, the detective who so relentiessly pursued the great forger of the earlier play. E. M. Holland, who impersonated Captain Redwood so convincingly in "Jim, the Penman," will reappear as the detective in "The Amateur Cracksman." This will be about the first time on record that a character has been lifted out of an old play to take part in a new one.

On the same ship with the Ziegfelds are Heinrich Conreid, the new manager of the Metropolitan Opera House, and the comedians, James E. Sullivan and Joseph Herbert. Mr. Ziegfeld told a French interviewer before leaving Paris that he hoped to secure Jean and Eduard De Reszke for a series of twenty concerts in the United States during the coming winter, and that if this plan didn't materialize he would try to induce Eduard De Reszke to sing the De Koven's new opera.

x x x When Al G. Field, the minstrel manager, concluded that he wanted a big vaudeville act to feature with his show this season he sent word to Everhart, the American juggler, who is now in Europe, to secure the best specialty obtainable. Everhardt made his first appearance with the Field minstrels when a boy and has always been a great friend of the veteran burn cork manager. The juggler, after witnessing all of the famous novelties on the Kuropean vaudeville stage, selected the two Leigh brothers and engaged them for the Field show. These two young Englishmen, who give a most astonishing equilibristic exhibition, will be seen with the Field Minstrels at English's next Thursday night.

x x x Another actor has turned playwright. Louis Harrison, a comedian who has been seen in numerous Broadway musical productions, has just written a musical comedy entitled "The Man from America," and George W. Lederer, the manager of many big shows, thinks so well of the piece that he has accepted it for production with a view to presenting it in New York toward the close of the season. No music has as yet been written for the comedy, but Mr. lederer has opened negotiations with several composers and may deelde to have the melodies furnished by several popular song

XXX E. H. Sothern has just completed the play upon which he has been working for the last six months during his leisure hours away from the footlights. It is to be called Light that Lies in Woman's Eyes," and is to be produced by his wife, Virginia Harned, when she opens her season in Washington at the Columbia Theater. So interested is Mr. Sothern in the first complete play that he has ever written that he has postponed the opening of his own season in order to rehearse the new piece.

xxx A new star this season will be Rebecca Warren, who for six years played the leading feminine roles in the support of E. H. Sothern. Miss Warren's tour is to be under the direction of Frank Burt, owner of two theaters in Toledo. Arrangements have been made with Mrs. Fiske whereby the dramatization of Thomas Hardy's "Tess of the D'Urbervilles" has been secured for Miss Warren's use.

In the first place, it seems likely that the entire costume for autumn wear will be much more tight-fitting than that of a year ago. The blouse front and the bolero are not seen at all, being succeeded by fitted waists and very long coats. These, it is said, will require a corset rather higher than the one now being worn, and the figure as a whole will assume a more conventional outline. So-called mannish materials will be much affected. Tweeds, serges and other rough cloths lead in popularity, and plaid effects promise to be prominent. Grays, browns, greens and several shades of purple will be fashionable colors, the last named being reserved for more elaborte gowns. Brown will probably be seen on the street more than any other color. There are so many shades of brown that all types of women will be able to find suitable browns. The trouble with this color is that it fades. Sun and rain are usually fatal to it, no matter how expensive the material may be. A model walking suit, unpacked not more than a day, was seen. It was a warm shade of gray tweed, with a scarcely visible plaid of dark green. The 42-inch coat was arranged in flat plaits in the back, the plaits Marguerite Tompkins, of Indianapolis, is starting from the shoulder seams and alnost meeting in a point at the waist. ## A Summer Enterprise.

New York Tribune. Much fun and considerable profit were derived from a business enterprise carried on last year at a well-known seaside resort by two enterprising young women who happened to know something of kindergarten work. They rented a large tent, decorated it with seaweed, kelp and shells, spread a few rugs on the sand with plenty of pillows, and concealed two large trunks with all necessary accessories behind a couple of bamboo screens, and hung out a shingle bearing the legend, "Day Nursery." The results more than fulfilled their most sanguine expectations. Parents going for a sail checked their whole family; mothers ready for a morning dip deposited the baby: fathers tired of answering questions shifted their responsibilities on to the willing shoulders of the young women in the tent shelter; young aunts going fishing with their 'steadies' checked their little nephews and nieces. The children were much more comfortable in the tent than they would have been with their relatives, the latter were infinitely relieved to get rid of them, and the nurses enjoyed both the work and the money it brought them.

THE REV. L. L. CARPENTER DELIV-ERS ADDRESS AT BETHANY.

Interesting Lectures Heard by Bethany Folk-Reports of Committees Adopted by C. E. Convention.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. BETHANY PARK, Aug. 14.-The address around which all the interest of the day centered, was that given by Dr. L. L. Carpenter on "Fifty Years a Christian" today being the fiftieth anniversary of his entrance into the Christian life. The address was given in Dr. Carpenter's inimatable way. E. L. Frazier, of Marion, was unable to be present, but sent an excellent paper to be read. The assembly lecture was given by Dr. J. E. Powell, of Wabash.

His subject was "The Value of Ancient

Things." W. F. McCauley, of Cincinnati, gave an address in the afternoon on "The Individual and His Training."

Following this address the committees made their reports. The committee on nominations submitted the following names: For state superintendent, B. L. Allen, of Indianapolis; for state secretary, Miss Josephine Canfield, Indianapolis; for treasurer, Lewis M. Wilcox, Indianapolis; superintendent of junior and intermediate societies, Mrs. Kate Whistler Bellamy, of Evansville. This report was accepted by unanimous vote. The committee on enrollment reported 250 members in attendance. The committee on awarding of banner to the society making the largest gain, awarded the banner to the Junior C. E. Society, of Millgrove. This society was organized in January with five members and has increased to a membership of forty-seven. The committee on awarding the $55 gold medal reported that eight members of the Burlington society had been present every day, registered every day, and, according to the conditions governing the awarding, were entitled to the medal. This medal was donated to the Christian Endeavor societies of Indiana by Dr. Young, of Fort Wayne, in 1898, and has caused much interest each year among the societies in striving to win it. vote of thanks and appreciation was tendered B. L. Allen for faithful and efficient work. As a more tangible proof of appreciation the convention appointed W. M. Cunningham, of Indianapolis, a committee of one to select for Superintendent Allen a

SUES FOR BIG DAMAGES

WILLIAM A ECK DEMANDS $25,000 FOR INJURIES IN ACCIDENT.

Indianapolis Traction and Termina Company Defendant in the Suit-News of the Local Courts.

In a $25,000 damage suit filed yesterday in the Superior Court by William A. Eck against the Indianapolis Traction & Terminal Company and the Big Four Railroad Company, an old city ordinance is referred to. The suit is for injuries received in a grade-crossing accident last March.

The complaint states that the train was going thirty miles an hour, an unlawful rate, according to a city ordinance passed March 12, 1866, in which a maximum rate of speed of four miles an hour is provided for. The accident occurred at the East Michigan-street crossing, when a car in which the plaintiff was riding was struck by a Big Four train.

After Twenty-Eight Years as a Wife. | larly and early enough in the morning. After twenty-eight years of married life Mrs. Mary E. Ray filed a divorce suit against her husband, Asbury C. Ray, yesterday in the Superior Court. They were married in 1875 and separated July 1 of this year. She charges that her husband has a bad disposition and a quick temper. She declares that he will sit up half the night. preventing her from getting any sleep or rest. She owns a team, from which she earns $12 to $20 per week. Ray, however, collects this money and spends it on himself, she says. She also asks the custody of
